

Job Posting: Midstream Consultant

Houston, TX

Muse, Stancil & Co. is an independent employee-owned consultancy providing advisory services to the energy industry since 1983. Trusted for more than 33 years to provide credible and impartial expertise addressing the technical, commercial, financial, legal, and regulatory issues that confront the industry, Muse has offices in Dallas, Houston, London, and Singapore to serve our clients.

Job Description

As a result of significant growth in its Midstream practice, we are seeking a Midstream Consultant to support the execution and delivery of consulting projects for an expanding and increasingly diverse clientele. Based in our Houston office, the Midstream Consultant will be expected to support our Midstream client engagements around the world.

Responsibilities include but are not limited to:

- Contribute to consulting engagements pertaining to natural gas, LNG, and NGL assets/markets.
- Developing insights and analyses for projects based on your operational and/or commercial experience with midstream assets such as pipelines, processing plants, terminals, and logistics.
- Support consulting activities by producing analysis and conducting research related to market analysis, site visits, due diligence, and client presentations.
- Maintaining databases and models, including the RBAC NGL-NA™ model.
- Develop PowerPoint presentations and reports to summarize findings for clients.

Required Education, Experience, and Skills

- Bachelor's degree in engineering required; MBA is a plus.
- Minimum ten years of experience in the oil & gas industry, preferably in the midstream sector, in operational, commercial, and/or technical roles.
- Excellent communication and analytical skills, with a team and client-focused aptitude.
- Proficiency with MS applications required (Excel, Word and PowerPoint).
- Requires demonstrated ability with building Excel models, including financial analysis.
- Requires ability to work on multiple projects concurrently, often with overlapping deadlines.
- Requires keen attention to detail and highly effective organization and prioritization skills, including the ability to produce deliverables in a fast-paced, deadline-driven environment.
- Requires demonstrated effective verbal and written communication skills.

Candidates must currently be able to work in the United States without sponsorship.
